There was considerable excitement on Thursday among the crowds of men who congregated in this city for the purpose of doing something to help the o-called industrial army under the leadership of Carter. And, as is often he case with such movements, it was only excitement. It was started in mis understanding, carried on in fury and for a sound and stable silver policy,

No statute has ever been proposed to prevent the thoughts of a pauper coming in competition with the cerebrations of a millionaire, and in the great mental marts or the intellectual boards of trade of the globe there is no protection to the thinking industry. The doctrine of protection is avowedly to indrease production. But protection cannot create demand. Even the brainiest and most eminent advocates of a protective tariff do not assert that it creates greater appetite for food or larger stomachic capabilities for digestion and assimilation. And while protection holds that a home market is a paradise for the American farmer can produce more under normal conditions in a single year than his countrymen can consume in three years.

There are two classes of men who advocate free trade. The first believe in it and advocate It because they love liberty. They believe in it and advocate it because they think that every man is entitled to use the legitimate earnings of his own mind and person to the best advantage of himself and family, and that to do this he should be allowed to exchange his earnings wherever he can get for them the most of those things which he desires. The second class of the advocates of commercial freedom are among the later recruits in the contest for liberty to commerce. These individuals have joined because they thought they saw

That was believed to be impracticable if not impossible except by intenational agreement. Whatever some pronounced silverites may think on this question, and however correct they may be in their opinion that the United States can establish the free coinage of silver, alone, without injury to its com-

The organization of Democratic clubs in this territory should be continued nising that the term "free trade" is and perfected. There should be a common bond of union between them all This should extend not only to every club in Utah, but the connection should recruits in the contest for liberty to commerce. These individuals have joined because they thought they saw in the advocacy of lower tariff taxes and ultimate commercial freedom the possibility of political prominence and position. The first is made up of the protectees themselves. The second is composed of those whom the protectees bambooale by proselyting, persuasion, palayer and their peculiar and sometimes pecuniary methods and means. But I have, for a long time carried the belief that the federal power to tax was never intended to be used except for public purposes.

The constant endeavor of protectionists is to impress the American people with the fact that free trade is of Ehps. This lish origin, but they forget that in June, 1787, at Philadelphia, the convention forming the Constitution of the United States, determined that trade between States of the American Union should be forever absolutely free.
